

TRANSPORTATION IS BIG QUESTION

Heads of Street Railways Here to Attend Big Convention

One of the largest industrial conventions held since the war—that of the American Electric Railway Association on the municipal pier, Chicago, October 2-6, will be attended by several local transportation men. Included among those who will go from here are: I. F. Crow and R. V. Miller of the Oklahoma Union Railway company and H. Hilborn and C. E. Kline of the Tulsa Street Railway company.

The fact that the electric railways industry generally now is engaged in rehabilitation work, making conference of the leading middle importance, that there was no exhibit of materials and supplies at the Atlantic City convention last year and that the meeting this year for the first time in many years goes to the middle west, presage a gathering. It is of 1,500 persons. One entire side of the mammoth municipal pier and all of its halls will be utilized. The story of transportation from the days of the Indiana runner to the present high-speed electric car and the bus will be told in word and picture. All living past presidents of the association, whose services go back into the horse-car days, will talk, and a pageant showing transportation from Indiana runner, down through street car, trolley, stage coach, high-wheeled and horse-car days will be staged on Michigan avenue and at the pier on the opening day.

Leading subjects to be discussed are public relations, taxes and trackless transportation. Public relations are of unusual interest because of the increased number of lines which are trying to "sell their story" to the public through frank dealing; taxes because many communities are recognizing the injustice of compelling electric railways to pay for pavement used chiefly by automobiles and carry other burdens originally designed for horse cars; and trackless transportation because it involves the whole bus question. A special committee has been making a study of the bus situation for more than a year and its report will be one of the outstanding features of the meeting.

An inventor has combined calendar and savings bank in such a way that the dates can be changed only by the insertion of coins.
